UP WITH BIG BROTHER! (A heavy cross I Bear!)

THREE CHEERS FOR BIG BROTHER:

THREE BOOS FOR GAMESMASTERS WHO TAKE TOO LONG!

A Letter From The Front: part vi;

Wiges, Germany Feb. 23, 1919

Two Sergeants, another Corporal, and I volunteered for to find out for him. We located the bridge across the canal all right and got back to the Company.

Then we hiked about three miles to meet the show wagon about six O'clock that night. After supper we hiked about three more miles to a town where we rolled in the straw. I think in five minutes we were all dead to the world. We started back on the 9th and hiked to Verdun and then thru Scudine to inside Luxembourg where we rested a few days.

On Dec 1 we crossed the Moselle into Germany. We crossed the Rhine on Dec. 14 and reached Wiges that night where we are still located. This is the History of the 1st. Division, the first in France, the first in line, the first to fight. The first to be cited. (Saint-Quentin, Amiens, Cantigny, Chateau-Thierry, Belleau Wood, Marne, Saint Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, Hindenburg Line etc.)

The First Division was the first in the number of Staff Officers. Although the Second took more prisoners than we did it was because a good many of the First refused to take prisoners. They advanced sixty kilometers in a front line while we advanced 51 kilometers against resistance.

At Soissons we drove the wedge at St. Mihiel. We were given the hardest place to take, Mt. Sec. In the Argonne we had to take the key to the German line. And now it looks as if we will be among the last to go home. (Ed.-History proves they were last)

While a lot of the other Divisions go back and claim the credit. All thru the war we blazed the trail for others and still have to take the worst while the other fellows get the gravy.

I see now they are trying to do away with the Service Stripe as some of those home guards are so afraid we will show them up when we do get back.

Some of the last drafted guys said it was not their fault that they never saw the front. I guess they never thought about getting into it when the war first started but were willing to let some one else do their share of fighting for them while they stayed at home and took life easy.

An Revoir -With Love,

Sgt. N. J. Reinsel
